Books Hit the Big Screen

Some of the most widely circulated books in the library this year also hit the big screen. When people find out a popular movie started out as a book (which is almost always the case,) it brings them to the library. Often they are searching for the answer to the age-old questions: Which is better, the book or the movie, and how closely does the movie follow the book?

The most popular nonfiction book in the Weston Library right now is Laura Hillenbrand's Unbroken. This is the story of Louis Zamperini, a World War II pilot who was captured and imprisoned by the Japanese. The movie by the same title was recently released.

Among fiction titles, Gone Girl by Gillian Flynn was one of the most popular adult books in our library in 2014. The movie was released earlier this fall.

The Fault in Our Stars, by John Green, and the Divergent series, by Veronica Roth, have been widely circulated books in our library. Movies based on both titles came out in 2014.

1,000 Books Update

Those of you with young children may remember the library program we introduced last May, 1,000 Books Before Kindergarten. Currently, 17 preschoolers are enrolled in this endeavor. Several kids have reached the 200-400 level, and one ambitious young lady is almost to 900! Just to remind you, when 1,000 books have been shared with your preschooler, he or she receives a book to keep, and another book is added to our permanent library collection. More important is the awesome jumpstart your child gets on success in school. It's not too late to enroll your preschooler in this program. One book a day for three years will get you to the 1,000 book goal. Three a day gets you there in one year!
